"Scanlon has long since established himself as one of the area's great homegrown talents"

The Valley Advocate

A singer-songwriter from Northampton via New Jersey, Chris Scanlon has been a musician and performer for over 25 years. He's played venues such as the Iron Horse and festivals like Falcon Ridge, Upper Valley Music Festival and WordXWord. Scanlon recently presented a paper about Bruce Springsteen's Darkness on the Edge of Town album at an international symposium hosted at Monmouth University, future home of the Springsteen archives. The Valley Advocate says that "(Chris Scanlon) has long-since established himself as one of the area's great homegrown talents." Scanlon performs solo and with his all star band The Other Guys. His debut album "u-turn" on Plaid Jacket Records is a valentine to his youth in the Garden State. His next project will feature songs about hope and heartbreak set in the borough of Brooklyn NYC, both then and now.
